

As an employee of a corporation which is pure-play newspaper, and which would likely benefit strategically from relaxed rules on cross-media ownership in a single market, I am opposed to any rule changes which would make cross-ownership easier. All media are eventually local (even personal with today's technologies) and reducing the number of competing voices, as we have seen by relaxation in market multi-station broadcast regulations, is NEVER in the PUBLIC interest. Perhaps you should also look at EXISTING cross-media/single market or same media/multi-station ownership situations which were grandfathered or created by the FCC. So mark this as one "NO" vote on proposed rule changes relaxing ownership restrictions in local markets and "YES" for making them even stronger.
